

ABOUT THE STATE

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

From less than three acres of land in Ludlow, W. R. Waite obtained 14 two-horse loads of hay.

Olivia Jones of Burlington fell from a swing Thursday and fractured both bones in her left forearm.

C. M. Winslow of Brandon was elected president of the Vermont Ayrshire club at its annual meeting in Brandon Thursday.

A tennis tournament at which the state championship will be decided will be held in Brattleboro Country club courts Aug. 15.

Willis Whitney lost between 60 and 70 young turkeys in one day last week at his farm on Brantree hill. A fox got among the flock.

Manchester is having the best summer business in its history, the hotels running to good capacity with many other out-of-town people in cottages.

Miss Marion Carey of Hyde Park, Mass., and Miss Minnie Fountain of Helms Falls recently caught fifty pout in half an hour in Williams river.

Mrs. Ethel Costello, soprano singer, who gives her residence at Brattleboro, has filed a petition for divorce from Lamar Costello, who is in the government commissary service in Texas.

The average license and registration fee for automobiles in Vermont is $18.11 as compared with an average for the country of $7.46. Automobile fees last year defrayed nearly seven per cent of the cost of roadbuilding.

An entertainment will be given at the Brandon inn Monday evening by the Lake Dunmore chapter of D. A. R. for the purpose of raising funds for markers for the graves of revolutionary soldiers in that place.

Due to the unusual high water at this time of the year, more motor craft are in commission in Vermont than ever before. The high water allows the boats to clear the sand bars. Government inspectors were on the job this week.

Vermont postmasters have received governmental instructions to the effect that the decision made a year ago prohibiting the use of automobiles by rural carriers has been reversed. The rule as it now stands allows their use at the carrier's convenience.

Hoodlums visited the schoolhouse in Guilford Saturday night and broke up the desk and chairs and pulled down the blackboards besides doing other mischief. Their trail was marked by beer bottles.

A garden party held on the lawns of Miss Caroline H. Arms and the Betty Green estate in Bellows Falls Tuesday afternoon and evening, netted something over $300 for the Rockingham hospital.

A. T. Stevens of Richmond lost a horse last week through its breaking its neck while trying to scratch an ear with its hind foot. The halter rope slipped over the foot and held it, breaking the animal's neck.

According to Dr. C. F. Dalton, secretary of the state board of health, there is not a case of infantile paralysis in Vermont, the suspected case at Underhill having been found to be something else and the one at Burlington proving to be spinal meningitis.

It is estimated that $10,000 will be needed to repair the damage done to bridges in Shrewsbury by the heavy rains this summer. Ten or 12 have been taken out, most of them cement and iron bridges, recently built, and the roads have been washed beyond repair in some places.

Examination at the experiment station of the University of Vermont of the stomach of one of three cows belonging to N. C. Delano of Vergennes, which died recently, revealed the presence of paris green. As the cows had not been out of the pasture, it is supposed the poison was fed them. Four others which were affected did not die.

A bolt of lightning in a recent electrical storm would undoubtedly have killed Charles Webster of Stratford had he not been holding a glass tobacco jar against his waist, which acted as an insulator and deflected the bolt, which tore his shoes from his feet and badly burned them. Mr. Webster's four-year-old colt, which was standing in the barn was killed and another horse was thrown to the floor.

Senator Page and Rural Credits.

The senatorial bureau of former Governor Fletcher this week got after Senator Page for voting against the rural credits bill which had the support of Senator Dillingham and other senators from rural states. It is charged that Senator Page in opposing the bill was in effect voting for his bank at Hyde Park rather than for the benefit of the people. The rural credits bill is designed to make it easier for producing farmers to borrow money, or at least to expect that it will, and for that reason it may compete somewhat with present banks, which take loans on farm real estate. Farmers have always had a harder time in borrowing money than other business men for the reason that the value of their property varies so much according to location and the property is often in some isolated spot at a distance from any bank. The producing of crops and other products of the earth is the most important line of business in the country for the reason that all potential wealth comes in the beginning from the earth. Moreover the future development of Vermont depends in a great degree on what is done with the agricultural resources of the state. It is the greatest opportunity Vermont has for the future and the Senator has been greatly surprised to note by the Washington dispatches that Senator Page voted against the rural credits bill. If he was wrongly reported or has any good excuse the farmers of Vermont are ready to hear him.—Bennington Banner.

Servants in Germany

How the servant question is handled in Germany is told in George Stuart Fuller's book, "Germany of Today." "In Bavaria, if I wish to get rid of a servant, I must give her notice on or before the 15th of the month, the notice to take effect on the first of the month following. I must allow the servant in the two weeks intervening a certain number of outings to look for another place. If I delay my notice until the 15th I must tolerate the unwelcome domestic for six weeks longer. Should I prefer to get rid of her at any price I must pay her, not merely her wages, but also a sum to cover her board and lodging up to the legal date. Such legal provisions may easily be an annoyance to the employer. It is not all employees who seem to deserve so much consideration. But it is surely better that she well to do should suffer some inconvenience than those who have their daily bread to earn should run the risk of being brought to distress."

For Conserving Heat in Pipes.

An excellent covering for steam pipes may be made from materials that are always available. Take some fine sawdust and screen it through a sieve to remove any foreign bodies. Prepare a thin paste of flour and water and mix the sawdust thoroughly with this paste. With a small trowel the mixture so prepared should be applied in about five coats to the steam pipes while they are slightly warm. Each coat should be thoroughly dry before the next is applied. If the steam pipes are in an exposed situation three or four coats of coal tar should be applied after the paste has dried. If inside a building this waterproofing is unnecessary. Steam pipes treated with the sawdust as above lose very little heat.—Popular Science Monthly.

Victoria and the Irish Soldiers.

It was at a royal review of troops that Queen Victoria made an immortal declaration. Regiment after regiment, English, Irish and Scotch, passed before the queen. When the Grenadier guards went past she expressed the warmest of admiration for the faultless technique of the regiment. When a regiment of highlanders marched past she became positively enthusiastic. "Magnificent!" her majesty is reported as saying. "What splendid soldiers those highland men are!" Then came an Irish regiment, which one is not stated. This time it was not so much the faultless marching and the splendid physique that so impressed her majesty. For a moment she said nothing. Then in a low voice she turned to an officer and said, "Ah, that is bloody war!"

The Oldest Epitaph.

The oldest epitaph in English, which is found in a churchyard in Oxfordshire and dates from the year 1370, to modern readers would be unintelligible not only from its antique typography, but from its obsolete language, the first two lines of which run as follows and may be taken as a sample of the whole:

"Man com & se how schal alle dede be; wen yow comes bad & bare; noth have wen we away fare; alle ye werkes yv for care."

The modern reading would be: "Man, come and see how shall all dead be when you come poor and bare; nothing have when we away fare. All is weariness that we for care."—London Spectator.

The Sun in Winter.

In winter we are 3,000,000 miles nearer the sun than in summer. Some may think that if this statement is true we ought to have warmer weather in winter than in summer, but it must be remembered that the heat we receive from the sun depends very much upon the direction of its rays. In summer the sun's rays are more vertical than in winter; hence the days are warmer.

Seeing Around Corners.

There are many insects which have a very much larger field of vision than we have. This is due to the greater concavity of their eyes, enabling them to see around the corner, so to speak, behind and at the sides. This development in man would have its objectionable points, but also its good ones, not the least of which might be the detection of pickpockets.—Chambers' Journal.

Freezing Water.

Water contracts until it is reduced to 40 degrees and then expands till it freezes. The expansion of frozen water is because the ice crystals fit less closely than the particles of water did. Nine cubic inches of water will freeze, when frozen, ten cubic inches of ice.

Learning Drilling.

Bill—Where's your brother?
Jill—Oh, he's downtown learning to drill.

"Ah! Is he going to be a soldier?"

"No, a dentist."—Yonkers Statesman.

Anticipated.

Margaret—Did you tell the girls at the tea that secret I confided to you and Josephine?
Katharine—No, truly I didn't. Josephine got there first.—Exchange.
